THE SIGNIFICANCE OF ACADEMIC REGALIA

Wearing academic regalia is a custom with origins in the medieval European universities, where it was required as daily wear to serve as a reminder of a person's role in the academic community.

Most American colleges and universities have since adopted the cap, gown, and hood to wear exclusively at particular ceremonies, such as commencement. Since 1865, colleges and universities in the United States have followed a uniform code which specifies the correct type of regalia for each degree.

Masters and Doctors wear a hood lined with colors of the degree-granting institution, or lined with a color of an institution represented by the wearer. The hoods are trimmed in velvet with a color distinctive of the degree. Hoods of gowns at Pacific University are lined in black, with scarlet chevrons. Below is a listing of degrees and their typical colors.

Arts, Letters and Humanities	White
Business Administration	Drab
Economics	Copper
Education	Light Blue
Fine Arts	Brown
Library Science	Lemon
Music	Pink
Occupational Therapy	Slate
Optometry	Peacock
Philosophy	Dark Blue
Physical Therapy	Teal
Physician Assistant	Green
Psychology	Gold
Science	Golden Yellow
Social Science	Citron
Theology	Scarlet

GONFALONS

The gonfalon, a flag that hangs from a crosspiece or frame, originated in the medieval republics of Italy as an ensign of state or office. Gonfalons have been adopted in many universities around the world as college or institutional insignias. The colors of each gonfalon coordinate with the hood color of the discipline.

THE ACADEMIC MACE

The academic mace symbolizes the authority invested in the president by the Board of Trustees. It serves as a symbol of the highest ideals of humankind and exhibits the main characteristics of their most ancient relative the medieval battle-mace or war club.

The University's mace was commissioned by President Phillip D. Creighton to commemorate his investiture in 2003 and was crafted from white oak by Hardwood Designs. It is now a treasured University artifact and is incorporated in the official academic ceremonies of commencement, convocation, and presidential investitures.

ACADEMIC PROCESSION

The academic procession has its antecedents in medieval Oxford University. The procession is designed so that each graduating senior passes before each faculty member one final time before the conferring of the degrees. The colorful nature of the procession comes from academic hoods worn by the faculty. The rules for academic dress have evolved during the years from the 12th century, when communities of learners, or universities, everyday dress consisted of a long gown or robe often covered by a full-length cloak with a cowl, the forerunner of today's hood.
